

Can I be on the Oregon Health Plan (OHP) and have private health insurance?

Will OHP help me if I have private health insurance?

Often, you can qualify for OHP and keep your private health insurance. If this happens, health care providers need to bill your insurance first. OHP then pays copays, deductibles and services your insurance does not cover.

How will I know if OHP has my insurance information?

Your OHP coverage letter will list it. If you do not see it there, tell your worker and your coordinated care organization (CCO). Also tell them if your private insurance coverage ends or changes.

How do I find providers that will bill OHP and my insurance?

Call your insurance company for a list of their providers. Then call the providers and ask if they take OHP. You can also call your current health care providers and ask them if they take OHP.

If your pharmacy accepts your insurance, but not OHP, tell your insurance company. Under state law, they must work with pharmacies that can also bill OHP. This is to make sure OHP helps pay for your covered prescriptions.

Can OHP pay for my copays and deductibles?

OHP may be able to do this. Take all your health coverage ID cards to your health care appointments:

- Your Oregon Health ID,
- CCO/plan ID,
- Private health insurance card, and
- Any other cards, such as your Medicare ID.

Show these cards when you check in.

Can OHP help pay for my health insurance premium?

To find out, call your worker. They will need information about your health insurance, such as:

- Your premium amount,
- When the premium is due, and
- Whether you or your employer pays the premium.

Once you share this information, your worker will let you know if OHP can pay your premium.
